

ABSTRACT

A method and system for publishing network content is provided. Using an administrator interface, changes to content are made in a staging area. The staging area allows access to the remainder of the network for verifying links. Content is then published to a plurality of 5 production areas in response to a single command.

09160424-092598